Annual Preventative Maintenance Service Agreement - MSU Job#1328.pdf;

[EXTERNAL] This email originated from outside of FRIB

Hi Kiana,

I told you I would send a service agreement before the end of the month. So, with 3 hours on the clock-please see attached!

This compressor has been in service for 11 years now, and I don't think it has ever had a full preventive maintenance performed. The original process filter elements are still installed, and I don't think the hydraulic system has been maintained since original. I would suggest an initial PM which includes purchasing a full set of spare parts to keep at MSU and have our service tech. perform a full inspection, replacing parts as needed. From there, the annual cost would just include the maintenance/travel cost and any parts used. Future years would likely just be an oil change, inspection, and cleaning.

PDC has many machines in the field, operating since the 1980's with proper maintenance performed. If you can fit this into the department budget, it would be a long-term investment for the lab. If you have any questions, please let me know.

Hi Jarrod,

Congrats on extending your team! Please do not worry. I can wait. I am sorry if I keep bugging you.

To be honest, the compressor's owner is Colorado School of Mines, and because this is a public state university, it makes the true owner be the state of Colorado. So, it is not trivial how Michigan State University can become the new owner. Therefore, the professor who bought the compressor from PDC Machines (who works at Colorado School of Mines) and brought it to Michigan State University suggested to have a quote, which he can use to argue with the dean of his department that the cost would be a burden on Colorado School of Mines and that they should transfer the ownership to Michigan State University such that we can pay for the cost. Michigan State University cannot pay the cost quoted by you unless we become the owner.

So, this whole process may take a while. Thank you again for your time.

Best,

Kiana

Hi Kiana,

My apologies, I will certainly have it before the end of the month. My team has gone from just Sean and I, to 7 people in the past 3 months. I now have (4) technicians, a product trainer, and an additional tech support person. I've been very busy training and onboarding!

Best regards,

Dear Jarrod,

Sorry to trouble you again but I am still waiting for a quote for annual maintenance of the compressor at Michigan State University. Do you think you can get me one by the end of the month?

Thanks a lot,

Kiana
